HELENA—Sixth and Main.
NEW YORK—165 Sixth Av.

We are the price makers in all lines of goods we handle. We never wait for some one else to cut a price—we force things from the start, and nobody ever meets a price we make. This we can do only because we buy for cash—and in order to be able to buy for cash we must sell for cash.

When we started some time ago to sell fine stationery at cut prices, and advertised the fact, consumers of fine correspondence papers wondered—came to see if it could be true—and bought. Now they, and their friends, buy regularly—buy so much that we sell more of these goods than any other store—still we don't sell enough—and down go the prices again. These quoted today are from the two factories which are the acknowledged leaders in these goods. The qualities and brands are plainly specified. Have they ever been sold so cheaply before?

AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS.

Jake Ryan Will Be Taken Back to Texas to Be Tried for Murder.

He Was Under Sentence of Death Once but a Flaw Saved Him Then.

As Thomas J. Wherry, of Glasgow, He Shot Another Man There—Story of a Terrible Crime.

Gov. Richards yesterday honored a requisition made by Gov. Hogg, of Texas, for one Jake Ryan, now under arrest at Glasgow, where he is known as Thos. J. Wherry. Deputy Sheriff O. A. Swift, of DeWitt county, Texas, arrived in Helena yesterday armed with the requisition papers and went at once to the governor's office, where his papers were approved. He had telegraphed the sheriff of Valley county to meet him here with the prisoner, and if the Valley county man does not, the Texas sheriff will go after his prisoner. Ryan, or Wherry, is wanted in Texas for a murder committed nearly eighteen years ago, and the story of the affair, as told by Deputy Sheriff Swift, makes it one of the most cold-blooded affairs in the history of Texas.

The murder was the result of a feud between the families of Dr. George Brasell and David Augustine, of DeWitt county, Tex. The feud grew out of a trivial matter connected with a school election. On the night of Sept. 19, 1876, seven men went to the house of Dr. Brasell, who was lying at the point of death, and took him and his son, George Brasell, Jr., outside. They carried the father and son a few hundred yards away and shot them to death. They tried to get two other sons, both lads, to kill them too, but the boys escaped. The men were naked, but a lady who was in the house at the time raised the mask of one of them and recognized him.

The men suspected of the murder and subsequently indicted for it were Jack Ryan or Wherry, William Cox, Joe Sitterlee and William Meadows. The latter could not be found. Ryan, Cox and Sitterlee were convicted and sentenced to be hanged. Their cases were taken to the supreme court, which approved the sentence. They would have been hanged but just about that time a flaw was discovered in the indictment. It was a trivial matter, the word "state" having been changed to "state," so that the indictment read "against the peace and dignity of the state" instead of "against the peace and dignity of the state." But it was sufficient to vitiate the whole proceedings, and the case was thrown out of court. It was afterwards discovered that a lawyer had made the change in the indictment after it was drawn and that he had received $20,000 for doing it. This is not remarkable when it is known that all the parties to the affair were either wealthy or had wealthy connections.

Meadows, who had left the country after the murder, was caught in the Indian territory sixteen years later and brought back to Texas. He was tried and acquitted. Some facts brought out on the trial of Meadows caused the reintroduction of Ryan, Cox and Sitterlee, and the indictment of David Augustine. The accused men and their wind of what was coming and left. The arrest of Meadows, the new indictment, and the flight of the parties, revived interest in the affair of 1876 and the Texas authorities determined to press the matter to a conclusion. That they are doing so is evidenced by what is now going on. The leader of the conspiracy, Augustine, is now awaiting trial at Gonzales, Tex. He is a man of 65 years and wealthy and well connected. Ryan, too, was taken back to Texas. Cox and Sitterlee are still at large, but are being hunted by the officers of the law. Meadows has since died.

The story of how Ryan came to be caught in Montana is as interesting as the story of his crime. Last winter he was living at Glasgow, Va. Governor Under the name of Thomas J. Wherry. His wife was with him. One night at a dance Wherry shot another man on account of some real or fancied slight to his wife. He escaped into Wyoming, where he was again hidden. He was named and caught at the time, and when Gov. Richards made a requisition on the governor of Wyoming, the latter at first declined to honor it. The ground of the Wyoming governor's refusal was that R. W. Gifford, who made an application for the requisition, was one of Wherry's bondsmen, and that Wherry's extradition prior to his trial, forfeiting his bail. This Gov. Osborne considered an infirmity and also a suggestion that Wherry was not wanted so much for the crime of murder as for his connection with the matter connected with the requisition made by Wyoming for John T. Wickham, charged with murder, also seems to have some share with the governor of Wyoming. Wickham was wanted in Wyoming for the murder of Constables B. H. and Bedford last fall during the winter. The requisition for Wickham was honored in Montana, but his friends, fearing mob violence, had him released. Wickham, charged with murder, was taken to Montana and taken to Glasgow to stand trial for assault with intent to commit murder. On his trial recently he was acquitted.

It was to Wherry's bondsmen at Glasgow that his wife gave some intimations of his real name and former history. The bondsmen wrote to Texas, telling what he knew. The result was that the Texas authorities investigated, found out that the Wherry of Glasgow was the Ryan of the Lone Star state, and sent a telegraphic request that he be held. This was done and the requisition proceedings followed. Deputy Sheriff Swift says he will take Ryan back to Texas by easy stages, stopping overnight whenever and wherever he can. He just put his order in. He says that though the murder took place so long ago, every witness on the former trial of Ryan, Cox, and Sitterlee are alive. They include three eye-witnesses.

THE FINKELSTEIN CASE.

Defendant on the Witness Stand and Under Cross Fire.

Defendant Marcus Finkelstein was on the witness stand pretty much all day in Judge Buck's court yesterday in his Polish wife's suit for divorce. At the opening of the session Lawyer McConnell succeeded in getting before the jury the paper importing to the certificate of Finkelstein's marriage with Sarah Elbert at Lincoln, Neb. Judge Buck said it was not a certificate, but merely a marriage contract. It was not intended to show a legal marriage, but it was in evidence for the purpose of showing that Finkelstein and his present wife were living together lawfully and constitutionally. The judge referred to the fact that the defense was trying to prove that the Russia-Poland marriage was not legal, and the Lincoln marriage appeared to have less of the formalities required by law than that of Eva Finkelstein. The defendant's direct examination was continued. He said that after the transactions with Elbert, his present wife's father, in Seattle and Spokane he sold out to Marcus Lisner, who carried on the business in Spokane through J. E. Linsman. He got $1,000 for the stock, $500 of which he sent to Elbert. He sent Elbert $200 later and spent the remaining $300 before his wife began business in Helena. Not one cent of the money was left for him. His wife bought the stock of Lisner. On cross-examination witness testified that one month after getting the Chicago "divorce" he met Sarah Elbert in Omaha and married her at Lincoln two days later. Her father didn't want her to get married, so they went away, but they didn't run away. He afterwards wrote to Elbert telling him of the marriage. Elbert was mistaken when he said he didn't know of the marriage. The case was adjourned to Monday.

THE CONTRACT AWARDED.

Adams-Rider Co., of Helena, to Heat the Billings Prison.

The board of state prison commissioners yesterday awarded the contract for putting in a hot blast heating and ventilating plant at the eastern penitentiary at Billings to the Adams-Rider company, of Helena, at their bid of $6,700, which was the lowest for that style of work. The difference of $1,500 between the lowest bid for a great reduction in cost and the lowest for a hot blast apparatus. As the work is to continue for all time, or for a long time at any rate, the majority of the board considered it the wisest plan to put in the hot blast plant, which not only provides for heating, but for ventilation as well. The next lowest bid to that of the Adams-Rider company for the hot blast was that of the A. L. Babcock company, of Billings, at $5,735. The contract was let with the understanding that the lumping for the work should be done during the summer of building, and the other part of the plant was to be put in during the winter. The legislature should refuse to sanction the whole expense the contractor should consent to take pay for what has been done. Attorney General Haskell opposed the hot blast plant, and thought the direct radiation plant good enough for the purpose. Gov. Richards and Secretary of State Richards voted not to consider the direct radiation plant at all. The lowest bids for direct radiation were Sturrock & Prentiss, at $4,300.
